Voters will elect local leaders today

By KIRSTEN SORENSON
Senior Reporter

Registered voters have all day today to vote for the candidate of their choice and help choose a mayor and five city council members for Provo and Orem.

Candidates have discussed their interest in BYU, how they will advocate tenants' rights and how they will involve BYU more in the community. Voters in Provo will be electing a four-year mayor. Provo is set up with four district council members and one citywide council member.

Voters in Orem will be casting votes for a four-year mayor and three four-year council members.

year district council member from the northeast and southwest districts.

Voting opens at 7 a.m. and closes at 8 p.m. in Provo.

Those registered to vote in Provo can call 379-6524 and 379-6525 before 8 p.m. today in order to find out their district's voting location.

Voting for Orem also opens at 7 a.m. and closes at 8 p.m.

Those registered to vote in Orem but don't know where to go can call two numbers to find out: 224-7074 or 224-7194.

Voters in Orem will be casting votes for a four-year mayor and three four-year council members.

Packwood's diary changes focus of Senate debate

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A nervous Senate, debating sex, allegations of possible criminal conduct and the right to privacy, wrestled reluctantly yesterday with a historic motion to enforce a subpoena for Sen. Bob Packwood's "very, very personal" diaries.

The Ethics Committee cannot turn a blind eye to potential violations of federal law and standards of conduct, said Sen. Richard H. Bryan, the committee's chairman.

The argument between Bryan and Packwood, R-Ore., turned heated over a man's assertion last week that Packwood may have violated the law. The debate raged on for nearly 12 hours before senators gave up for the night and decided to continue Tuesday.

Packwood had said earlier that his diaries had more than 8,000 pages of writings on the sex lives of fellow lawmakers.

Bryan added Monday that the diaries contained references to history-making events and matters that "are very, very personal."

Packwood accused his colleagues on the ethics panel of acting as "prosecutors, jury and judge," but told the rest of the Senate the matter could be settled in a short of a showdown vote.

The debate focused on the clash between the ethics committee's determination to inquire and the Oregon

Republican's assertion of his constitutional privacy rights.

Bryan, D-Nev., spoke of the Senate's unprecedented moment when he told senators, "No member of the Senate, under investigation in any form by the Senate Ethics Committee, has ever in the history of the committee, refused to comply with a document request."

The committee has been investigating allegations that Packwood made unwanted sexual advances to more than two dozen women and attempted to intimidate some of the accusers to keep them quiet.

Monday's debate focused on the committee's discovery of entries outside those areas.

When the committee requested those entries, Packwood's lawyers refused to provide them.

The committee, having reviewed the diaries from 1969-89, then voted to subpoena the diaries from Jan. 1, 1989, to the present.

The full Senate now is deciding whether to vote to enforce that subpoena request.

Packwood described the diaries as so personal that even his former wife and children have not seen them.

The committee voted unanimously for the subpoena.

Vice Chairman Mitch McConnell, R-Ky., criticized Bryan's disclosure last week that the committee had discovered what it believed was possible criminal misconduct.

SAY CHEESE: Photographers focus on Hillary Rodham Clinton prior to her testimony before the House Ways and Means Committee in September. The Committee was beginning hearings on health care reform. Clinton criticized the insurance industry Monday for what she called deceitful advertising.

First lady blasts health ads

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Hillary Rodham Clinton accused insurance companies Monday of waging a deceitful campaign against the Clinton health plan to protect profits and preserve the ability to cut people off when they get sick.

"It is time for you and for every American to stand up and say to the insurance industry, 'Enough is enough. We want our health care system back,'" she told more than 2,000 pedicians.

The industry said it was the first lady who was guilty of deception and promised to press its $6.5 million advertising campaign that raises questions about President Clinton's health plan.

The first lady castigated the "Harry and Louise" TV ads run by the Health Insurance Association of America that question key features of the Clinton plan.

"One of the great lies that is currently afoot in this country is that the president's plan will limit choice. To the contrary, the president's plan enhances choice," said Hillary Clinton.

"What you don't get told in the ad is that it is paid for by insurance companies who think their way is the better way," she said.

Charles N. Kahn III, the health insurers' executive vice president, called Hillary Clinton's attack on the ads "a total misrepresentation of the facts."

"It's just another example of the administration trying to paint us as the black hat to somehow help their cause," Kahn said.

New cream may slim down thighs

By ROCHELLE SINK
Universe Staff Writer

A local cosmetics distributor will announce that an asthma drug used as a topical cream ingredient can have a slimming effect on women's thighs.

Neways, Inc., of Salem, Utah, announced that scientists from Harbor-UCLA Medical Center, Stanford University and Pennington Biomedical Research Center studied the effect of aminophylline on two groups of women, said Darick Mower, an independent distributor for Neways.

When the drug was applied topically to the women's thighs for six weeks, researchers reported an average loss in thigh circumference of 1 to 1 1/2 inches, he said.

Neways uses aminophylline and a similar form of the ingredient, theophylline, in one of its products.

"Theophylline is the active ingredient that triggers receptors to secrete fat and induces the fat-burning process," said Tom Mower, president of Neways.

Neways has been using theophylline in its Skinny Dip product, a topical cream weight-loss product that improves the appearance of skin, for about a year and a half, Darick Mower said. The new version of Skinny Dip, which combines theophylline with aminophylline, was first made available to the public Oct. 26.

Neways doesn't have to get the product approved by the Food and Drug Administration as long as it doesn't make any drug claims, he said.

"I'm sure they'd like to regulate it, though," he said. "They'd like to regulate all herbs."

"It's illegal for me to sell a drug that creates weight loss," Tom Mower said.

For this reason, Neways sells Skinny Dip as a "cosmetic" rather than as a "drug," he said.

"It takes 10-15 years to get a drug approved in the United States," he said. "We don't have the resources to do that, and we would waste a lot of time getting it approved."

Theophylline can't be marketed as a cosmetic to sidestep the drug-approval process, said Paul Teitell, supervisory investigator for the Salt Lake City division of the FDA. It's a prescription drug that is normally available in tablet and aerosol forms.

"It has never been shown to be safe and effective for reducing the circumference of thighs," he said.

In order for a drug to get FDA approval, its safety and efficacy must be demonstrated through animal and human clinical testing, he said.

Skinny Dip can be applied to the thighs, buttocks and other areas of the body, Darick Mower said. Aminophylline has only been researched through thigh application.

The thigh is the toughest part of the body to lose fat from, Tom Mower said. It's the only part of the body that contains cellulite, he said.

"Skinny Dip has always been effective because it uses a lot of biochemistry," Darick Mower said.

Theophylline has potential side effects, Teitell said.

"It causes high blood pressure, but we don't know what the topical effects are," he said.

One woman who participated in the study got a rash from using the aminophylline cream, Tom Mower said. Neways has never had problems

Supreme Court will expound on Miranda rule

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court agreed Monday to set new boundaries for its landmark Miranda ruling on the rights of criminal suspects by deciding who qualifies as a suspect and how police should respond to vague requests for a lawyer's help.

The justices will use murder cases from California and South Carolina to clarify the legal protections accorded people being questioned by police.

The court's 1966 ruling in Miranda vs. Arizona requires police nationwide to warn suspects in custody before questioning them that they have a right to remain silent or get a lawyer's help.

Current high court rulings require all police interrogation to stop when criminal suspects invoke their right to have a lawyer's help.

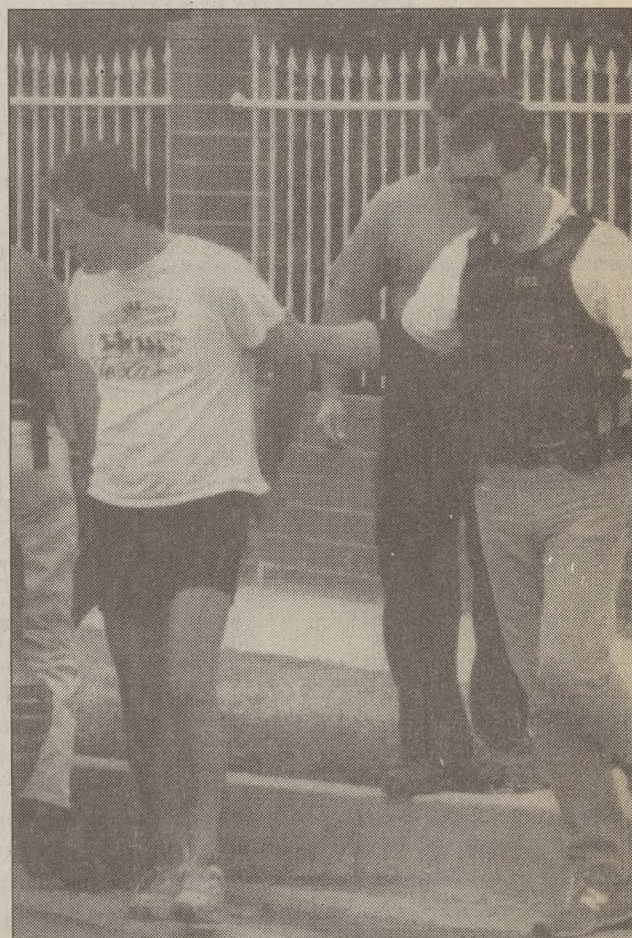

The U.S. Court of Military Appeals upheld Robert Davis' murder conviction, ruling that Navy investigators correctly asked him to clarify his wishes after Davis responded to a question by wondering aloud whether he should talk to a lawyer.

Davis was convicted and sentenced to life in prison for the Oct. 3, 1988, murder of Keith Shackleton, a sailor at Charleston Navy Base in South Carolina.

He was questioned after waiving his Miranda rights. But about 80 minutes into the interrogation, he said, "Maybe I should talk to a lawyer."

The Court of Military Appeals upheld the use as evidence of everything Davis told the investigators after making his comment about talking to a lawyer.

In the California case, the justices must decide whether Robert Stansbury was a suspect in custody when questioned 11 years ago at a Pomona police station about the murder of 10-year-old Robyn Jackson.

"YOU HAVE THE RIGHT TO REMAIN SILENT...": The Miranda rights of criminal suspects will be clarified by the Supreme Court to define who is a suspect and how police should respond to vague requests for a lawyer. By July, the rulings should be decided, and the rights of suspects, such as Christian Gilbert Nadal, left, in Los Angeles, will be better defined.

Republicans seek gains in 3 key states

Republicans hope to whittle the big Democratic advantage at statehouses and city halls Tuesday in elections for the top jobs in New Jersey, Virginia and New York City. The contests offer the broadest glimpse of voter attitudes on crime and taxes since President Clinton's victory a year ago.

In New Jersey, Democratic Gov. Jim Florio is seeking re-election against Republican challenger Christie Whitman, in a race dominated by crime and taxes. Florio had the edge in late polls.

The Virginia governor's race features Democrat Mary Sue Terry against Republican George Allen. Terry seeks to become the state's first woman governor while Allen stresses a theme of "honest change" after 12 years of Democratic rule in Richmond. Allen was leading in late polls.

New York's contest was a heated rematch of the closest mayoral race in city history, and it was again a tossup as the candidates made election-eve appeals.

In arguing for a second term, Mayor David Dinkins said he had held the line on property taxes and that crime was on the decline.

Republican challenger Rudolph Giuliani said Dinkins had done little to stop violent crime.

Murder trial begins for British boys

PRESTON, England — One of two 11-year-old boys accused of luring a toddler from a crowded shopping mall and battering him to death with bricks and stones sobbed and whispered "Daddy, Daddy" as a prosecutor described the crime Monday, the opening day of their trial.

The boys, who were 10 at the time of the Feb. 12 slaying, are the youngest children in Britain ever to be charged with murder. Their arrests created a national furor, raising fears of a decline in British morals amid a rising juvenile crime rate.

The boys have pleaded innocent to charges of abducting and murdering 2-year-old James Bulger after he strayed briefly from his mother in a Liverpool shopping mall.

Ten is the youngest age at which children can face criminal charges in Britain. If convicted, they will be detained indefinitely at a secure facility.

S.L. judge suspends city's gun control law

SALT LAKE CITY — A judge has issued a temporary restraining order on the city's gun control law designed to curb gang violence.

Third District Judge Michael Murphy issued the order Monday afternoon after hearing testimony from city attorney Roger Cutler and local gun store owners.

Cutler told the judge the city council will amend a controversial gun law that requires a five-day waiting period for young adults who want to buy guns. The council will take the action during a meeting today, Cutler said.

"The confusion likely to occur if this court issues an injunction is hard to describe," Cutler said. "It would be the wrong message at the wrong time."

Murphy also heard pleas by Salt Lake gun store owners who asked him to ban enforcement of the law until Thursday. The law was to take effect Monday, and has drawn criticism from the National Rifle Association.

Longest space shuttle flight ends

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. — Columbia and its crew glided to Earth under a rising sun and setting moon Monday after the longest space shuttle flight in history.

After 14 days in orbit, the seven astronauts crew were carried off Columbia on stretchers to preserve the effects of weightlessness for tests that will be conducted on them.

Columbia floated through a clear morning sky over the Mojave Desert as 35,000 spectators cheered its 7:05 a.m. touchdown.

The crew, which included two physicians, a biochemist and a veterinarian, focused on medical research to better understand how the body changes in weightlessness.

NASA wants to know what causes side effects of space travel and how those maladies can be counteracted. Common ailments include motion sickness, anemia, weakened muscles and bones, and lightheadedness upon return to gravity.

The crew will be subjected to "grueling" tests over two weeks, said project scientist Frank Sulzman. Some will undergo more tests over 45 days. All will then be part of the on-going lifetime study of NASA's astronauts.

Career Fair helps Y students find future employers

By JOANN BRODERICK
Universe Staff Writer

BYU's Career Fair isn't just about getting exposure to the corporate environment — for some students it may mean getting a job.

Around 60 employers will be setting up booths in the ELWC Ballroom Wednesday from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. to answer questions about careers with their company and to hire students, said Lloyd Hawkins, office manager for BYU's Placement Center.

Mike Colledge, manager of human resources for Dynix Inc. in Provo, said the company plans on hiring students from career fair contacts and building a pool of applicants. "We have real openings right now," he said. "We ask students to bring a resume and to look sharp as they go around," Hawkins said.

Various companies from several states will be there representing such fields as retail, insurance, finance, manufacturing, computers, sales and marketing, communications, travel, government and graduate programs.

Employers are trying to get as much publicity and exposure as possible, employers will want to come again next year," Hawkins said. About 2,000 to 3,000 students attended last year's career fair, Hawkins said. "We'd like to get more this year."

Aside from the hiring which goes on at the fair, companies also use it as a way of informing students about opportunities in various fields of work, he said. This fair helps get students thinking about their careers, Hawkins said. "Maybe some students haven't thought about careers and what's available," Hawkins said.

"We'd like to have the students come and explore career opportunities with these employers," he said. By attending the fair, students can find out about upcoming jobs, internships, and what skills companies are looking for, he said.

Church growth in Russia topic of professor's talk

Universe Services

Gary L. Browning, a professor of Germanic and Slavic languages, will speak about the introduction of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints into Russia for the BYU Campus Devotional Series today.

The devotional begins at 11 a.m. in the de Jong Concert Hall, HFAC, and will be broadcast live on KBYU-TV and KBYU-FM. The devotional will be rebroadcast on KBYU-TV Nov. 28 at 6 a.m. and 11 a.m. KBYU-FM will rebroadcast the devotional this Sunday at 9 p.m.

The newly established Campus Devotional Series, which will feature speakers from across campus two or three times each semester, is designed to complement the regular University Devotionals in the Marriott Center.

Browning's devotional is titled "Out of Obscurity: The Emergence of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in Russia."

He will outline events from 1843 to mid-1993 that led to the establishment of the Russian mission, and the factors which have inhibited or contributed to the development of successful missionary activity.

Browning will discuss many experiences of the early Church members and give depictions of Russian Church leaders and others who played fundamental roles in the mission.

After coming to BYU as an assistant professor in 1976, Browning served as dean of BYU Honors Education, chair of the Faculty Advisory Council and chair of the Department of Germanic and Slavic Languages.

In July 1990 Browning was called to be president of the Finland Helsinki East Mission, and was subsequently called in 1992 as the president of the Russia Moscow Mission until his return to Provo in July of 1993.

Browning's research specialties are 19th- and 20th-century Russian literature. He spent two years at Bryn Mawr College in Pennsylvania teaching Russian language and literature.

FINANCIAL AID UPDATE (Renewal Applications are coming!)

Beginning November 9, 1993, the U.S. Department of Education will be sending Renewal Applications to all students who applied for Federal financial aid for 1993-94. To ensure that you receive your Renewal Application, we have printed below a form which you can use to update your address with Federal Student Financial Aid Programs. If your address has changed since you applied for financial aid for 1993-94, please use this form to provide a correct address for mailing your Renewal Application. Please sign and send the address correction form to:

Federal Student Financial Aid Programs
P.O. Box 4005
Iowa City, 52243-4005

When you receive your Renewal Application, please review the pre-printed information and make any necessary corrections. You will also need to update the information regarding income, assets, family size, etc., so it is accurate for the 1994-95 academic year. We encourage you to complete your 1993 Federal income tax forms before attempting to fill out the Renewal Application.

Please do NOT sign or submit the Renewal Application until January 1, 1994. Send it to the address listed on the Renewal Application itself (do not submit it to the BYU Financial Aid Office). Renewal Applications signed or submitted before January 1, 1994, will be returned to you unprocessed.

If you do not receive a Renewal Application, you will still be able to complete a regular Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA), as you have done in the past. These will be available in our office after January 1, 1994.

Sincerely yours,

The U.S. Constitution: Inspired and Imperfect Racist?

Representatives and direct Taxes shall be apportioned among the several States which may be included within this Union, according to their respective Numbers, which shall be determined by adding to the whole Number of free Persons, including those bound to Service for a Term of Years, and excluding Indians not taxed, three fifths of all other Persons.

— Article I (This section was changed by the 14th Amendment.)

Constitution is an inspired document because of those the Lord raised up

This article is excerpted from a talk given Jan. 15, 1991.

It is in my view no coincidence at all that Joseph Smith was born less than 15 years after the Bill of Rights became part of the Constitution. It's easy to forget that. The establishment of our Constitution by the hands of wise men occurred in the 18th century, and the birth of Joseph Smith and the First Vision in the 19th, but they actually took place only a few years apart. Without the Constitution, we probably would not have the gospel.

And this brings me to the second unique relationship between our American Constitution and our religion. We know that in fact the events whose 200th birthday we observe did not come about just by chance. The descriptive phrase was most commonly used by many members of the Church is that our Constitution was "divinely inspired." Unfortunately, some Church members have deduced from that general, non-scriptural description more than the scriptures or the Constitution or common sense will sustain.

That is, from the general label, "divinely inspired," some assume that the Constitution is tantamount to scripture, and therefore perfect in every respect, reflecting in every provision and every sentence the will of our Heavenly Father, just as is true of the Book of Mormon or the Doctrine and Covenants. That view cannot withstand analysis. Our Constitution has some provisions that are not only not divine, they are positively repulsive. The classic example is contained in Article V, which guaranteed as a matter of constitutional right that the slave trade would continue through at least the year 1808. There are other provisions which are not as offensive as the slavery guarantee, but they were quite clearly bad policy, and certainly were not divinely inspired in the same sense as are the scriptures. Moreover, regarding the Constitution as tantamount to scripture is difficult to square with the fact that our republic has functioned very well, probably even better, after at least one of its original provisions (requiring United States senators to be elected by their respective state legislatures rather than the people at large) was amended out of existence by the 17th Amendment.

In my own view, this whole issue is resolved simply by examining what the scriptures say, rather than resorting to the generality, "divinely inspired," which you will not find anywhere in the standard works. Probably the most helpful statement is contained in Section 101 verse 80 of the Doctrine and Covenants: "And for this purpose have I established the Constitution of this land, by the hands of wise men whom I raised up unto this very purpose ...." I submit that this scripture makes it very clear that our Heavenly Father's involvement in the bringing forth of our Constitution was more an involvement in process than in end result. As President Benson has stated, "It is my firm belief that the God of Heaven raised up the Founding Fathers and inspired them to establish the Constitution of this land." His focus, and the focus of the Doctrine and Covenants, frees us of the burden of trying to equate the Constitution with scripture and therefore to justify every part. And a focus on process reaffirms the fact that the Constitution did not just come about by chance. Our Heavenly Father did play an active and essential role. That role was not the revelation to a prophet of infallible truth, perfect and reliable in every aspect. Rather, what the Lord did was to raise up at just the right time and in just the right combination people who could and predictably would produce a document that is, on balance, the most remarkable ever struck by human hands. Interestingly enough, James Madison himself in Number 37 of the Federalist Papers also expressed the view that "it is impossible for the man of pious reflection not to perceive in it (referring to the Constitution) a finger of that Almighty hand which has been so frequently and signally extended to our relief in the critical state of the Revolution." Statements similar to that of Madison can be found in the writings of others of the Founding Fathers.

A final area of constitutional interest unique to Latter-day Saints finds its source in the well-known "Hanging by a Thread" statements by the Prophet Joseph Smith. Similar statements have been reiterated by no fewer than six of his successors, including the current prophet. In a forthcoming book to be published by the Religious Studies Center, Professor Don Cannon lists over 40 instances in which these seven presidents have either used the "thread" metaphor or something like it. But in none of those quotations cited by Professor Cannon has any Church leader ever been very specific as to the metaphor's meaning.

Unfortunately, some members of the Church have been all too ready to offer their own explanations. The only thing consistent about these explanations is that in each instance, it was the Church member's own unresolved, often very private, grievance which supplied evidence that the thread was beginning to fray, sometimes beyond repair. Among some people, any problem from a tax increase to a failure to collect the garbage on time to a boundary dispute with one's neighbor is likely to call forth the observation that it is certainly easy to see how the Constitution is hanging by a thread. A companion assertion is that the election or appointment of certain persons, often the person making the assertion, to designated positions provides the key to preventing the demise of our constitutional system.

In my view, this is another instance in which going beyond what our leaders have said can be misleading at best, and potentially fraught with mischief. Even though we have not been given the exact meaning of the prophets' statements about the Constitution hanging by a thread, the scriptures do define the conditions on which freedom in the land of America ultimately depends. I am satisfied that whatever else may eventually hang in the constitutional balance, this much is clear: The continuation of the blessings of liberty depends finally on our spiritual righteousness. As the Lord told the Jaredites in the Book of Ether, this is a "land of promise." And "whatsoever nation shall possess it shall be free from bondage, and from captivity ... if they will but serve the God of the land, who is Jesus Christ." If the people fail to keep this covenant, they "shall be swept off when the fullness of his wrath shall come upon them. And fullness of his wrath cometh upon them when they are ripened in iniquity." (Ether 2:9-12)

Sexist?

Representatives shall be apportioned among the several States according to their respective numbers, counting the whole number of persons in each State, excluding Indians not taxed. But when the right to vote at any election for the choice of electors for President and Vice President of the United States Representatives in Congress, the Executive and Judicial officers of a State, or the members of the Legislature thereof, is denied to any of the male inhabitants of such State, being twenty-one years of age and citizens of the United States, or in any way abridged except for participation in rebellion, or other crime, the basis of representation therein shall be reduced in the proportion which the number of such male citizens shall bear to the whole number of male citizens twenty-one years of age in such State.

Political correctness of '90s offers inadequate judgment

One of the most annoying behaviors manifested by many contemporary liberals is a self-righteous snottiness directed toward anyone who doesn't share their narrow, "politically-correct" view of the cosmos.

Merely initiating a debate based on the above question means that these folks now want to cast their sanctimonious gaze backward to render moral judgment upon past generations as well.

It's plainly obvious that the Constitution can still be considered an inspired document even though it did not lay down the definitive law for celestial society. However, America of the late 1700s wasn't quite ready for Utopia (and modern America may even be less inclined). What the Constitution did was provide a foundation upon which to gradually build a better nation. To accomplish the task it inherently anticipated and welcomed change. Remember the amendment process the founding fathers (or is it "parents"? ) built into it?

It's preposterous to expect a 200-year-old document to completely conform to today's values or else dismiss it for lack of inspiration. Women weren't yet reading Cosmopolitan and therefore were not expecting "liberation" from the country's new charter. The Constitution had to be acceptable to the people of its day or it never would have been ratified in the first place.

It could be argued that the compromise on slavery actually hastened the end of the practice. If, for lack of an acceptable middle road, the states formed to separate nations, the practice might have endured much longer than it did.

If "politically correct" thinkers could tolerate a God who inspired 18th century Americans to come up with less-than-immediately-perfect Constitution they must have a significant problem with the 13th century Hebrews who were led by Moses Joshua to reclaim their Promised Land by means of war might be condemn today as tyrannical racist genocide. Using hindsight today's values it would be very simple (or maybe just simplistic) to lump the Host of Israel with the Serbs and Nazis.

May I recommend we all take a step toward historical maturity?

Can we recognize that it hasn't been 1993 for all of human history?

Let's learn to recognize and appreciate progress, greatness and inspiration in the context of the times, cultural special circumstances in which they occur.

And let's not expect our ancestors have been concerned with today's social agenda of which they had no knowledge.

Finally, let's not blame the Lord for failing to miraculously drag past generations, kicking and screaming, into the "modern" era of thought. Even if He had desired to do so, his respect for the eternal principle of Free Agency prevents him from working that way.

You're killing me!

Senior outside hitter Michele Fellows records a kill through the hands of two Colorado State players in a weekend match. The Cougars, still undefeated in WAC play, look to keep their 16-match winning streak alive when they travel to the University of Utah for a match Wednesday.

Women runners capture victory

By MIKE JORGENSEN
Universe Sports Writer

The fifth-ranked BYU women's cross country team raced by its competition, placing four runners in the top five finishers at the Weber State Wildcat Invitational on Friday. Tonya Todd, the 1992 WAC Cross Country Runner of the Year, won her first race of the year, nosing out teammate Heather Witney in a time of 17:40.2 seconds. "Tonya had a positive race," said Patrick Shane, BYU women's cross country coach. "She's been waiting to win one all year." Marty Aparicio, who finished third, and Kim Stossel, who finished fifth, also helped BYU cruise by second-place Weber State University by a score of 37 points to 50 points. Janeth Caizalitin, winner of the Hawaii Invitational and the Arizona State/Day's Inn Invitational, did not compete in order to maintain her workout schedule for nationals. The Cougars will compete next on Nov. 13 at the WAC championships in Salt Lake City. The top two teams will go on to compete in nationals on Nov. 22 in Pennsylvania. BYU is favored to win the WAC championships and go on to nationals. Shane said that of the teams competing at the WAC championships, 11th-ranked University of Colorado will probably be BYU's toughest competition. "We expect to win," Shane said. Shane said Todd, Heather Witney and Caizalitin all have a shot at being WAC champions. He said BYU is looking to possibly sweep the top three positions, something that has never been done. "It's been a real fun year," Shane said. "The team dynamics have been great."

Wisconsin officials working to avert future tragedies

Associated Press

MADISON, Wis. — Engineers, university officials and the governor pored over plans Monday to prevent a repeat of a student stampede that left dozens injured after Wisconsin's victory. Looming in their minds was the potential for an even more frenzied celebration: A home win over Ohio State on Saturday would give Wisconsin the inside track to the Rose Bowl. Thousands of fans surged down from the student sections at Camp Randall Stadium after Wisconsin beat Michigan 13-10 on Saturday, pressing those below into a pile several people deep. At least 69 were injured, seven critically. Ten remained hospitalized Monday, one of them in serious condition and the rest listed as good to fair.

Jazzman Chambers happy to be home

By MIKE JORGENSEN
Universe Sports Writer

Forward Tom Chambers has gone from the defending Western Conference champions, the Phoenix Suns, to the Utah Jazz. He hopes to help lift the Jazz to the Suns' level. Chambers was released by the Suns this past summer when the team decided not to renew his contract. Soon after he was cut by the Suns, Chambers was snatched off the free-agent market and signed by the Jazz. Chambers, a former University of Utah star, said one of the reasons he wanted to play for the Jazz was because he wanted to come back to Utah and because his family lives here. "I like being back here at home," he said. Chambers said he also knew the Jazz needed some help on the front line and he feels he can bring them the help they need. "Hopefully I'll be able to give them a little bit more depth in the front court position and a little bit more experience," he said. In the first five preseason games Chambers has averaged 10.4 points and 4.4 rebounds playing back-up power forward behind Karl Malone — a position Chambers got used to last season when Charles Barkley went to Phoenix. He said he didn't mind moving to the back-up role in Phoenix since he still had an opportunity to play and make an impact on the team. "Obviously I know I'm not as good as Charles Barkley," said Chambers, "but I supported him the best I could and I am going to do the same thing here in Utah." He said it's not the greatest thing in the world (sitting on the bench), but as long as the team is winning he's happy just doing his job. Chambers said he sees many similarities between the Jazz and the Suns, especially in the point guard and power forward positions. He said that even though it is still far off, he believes both teams have a chance to go all the way. One player Chambers will be facing off against tonight will be his former teammate and former BYU great Danny Ainge.

Chambers said he gets along great with Ainge and said Ainge was an excellent teammate. "I liked playing with him a lot more than against him, but that's just the nature of the business," Chambers said. He said that BYU was always the team to beat in the WAC because they had some great players, some of whom, like Ainge, have gone on to play in the NBA. "That was always a great series back then," said Chambers.

Reagan not forgotten

By MICHELLE SUZUKI
Universe Staff Writer

BYU was recently ranked first in the nation for "having the students most nostalgic for Ronald Reagan."

This comes from a newly released 1994 edition of The Princeton Review Student Access Guide to the Best 286 Colleges.

Last spring the Princeton Review, America's leading test-preparation company, conducted a survey of students at each major U.S. college with more than 1,000 students.

Approximately 40,000 students answered 70 multiple-choice questions about their school's academics, administration, quality of life and other topics, said Jeanne Krier, a representative of the book's publisher.

The book's chapter on the student survey includes 61 lists ranking the top 20 schools by category. Some of the categories include best overall academics, dorms like dungeons, race/class relations strained, professors bringing material to life and long lines/red tape. BYU ranked No. 1 in four categories: students most nostalgic for Reagan, students pray on a regular basis, good town-gown relations and future Rotarians and Daughters of the American Revolution.

College survey

In a survey of 40,000 college students' opinions about their schools, conducted by The Princeton Review in Spring 1993, BYU ranked in the top 20 in the following categories:

Students most nostalgic for Reagan	1
Students pray on a regular basis	1
Town-gown relations are good	1
Future Rotarians and Daughters of the American Revolution	1
Lots of soft drinks	2
Don't inhale	2
Stone-cold sober schools	2
Great libraries	7
The best quality of life	8
Gay students ostracized, discriminated against	12
Students pack the stadiums	12
Everyone plays intramural sports	15
Happy students	18

turbulence
West Bank marks pivotal point in talks

The Associated Press

BEIT EL, Occupied West Bank Jewish settlers, in an uprising against a government they say is sacrificing them for peace with Palestinians, blocked roads with burning tires and torched an Arab classroom on Monday.

It was the fourth day of rampage, which erupted when Muslim militants killed a settler on Friday. Settlers also took over some government homes, promising themselves squatters.

The scope and intensity marks a turning point in the settlers' resistance to the Israel-PLO negotiations and underscores how easily extremists on both sides can upset a peace agreement.

Every crazy settler and every crazy Muslim fundamentalist can kill everything in a minute," said Israeli journalist Danny Rubinstein, a veteran observer of the occupied lands.

Extremist violence appeared more likely with every report on progress in the negotiations on partial Palestinian self-rule. A majority of Israelis and Palestinians support the talks, which resumed in Egypt on Monday, leaving opponents in both camps isolated and feeling they have little left to lose.

In Beit El, a settlement of 3,000 about 10 miles north of Jerusalem, residents said Monday they felt the government was no longer protecting them.

The people here have decided that the rules of the game have changed," said Bruria Hounshtein, 21, cradling her 9-month-old son. "We will make a wish uprising here until the government understands us."

Every day since the death of Beit El resident Haim Mizrahi, settlers have blocked roads with burning tires and stoned Arab-owned cars and houses. On Monday, about 50 men from Beit El smashed school windows and torched an empty classroom in the nearby Palestinian refugee camp of Jalazoun. The children were not at school at the time.

In another show of defiance, Hounshtein and her husband Moshe, 24, were among eight families who moved into vacant settlement homes as squatters.

The homes, like some 1,500 elsewhere in the West Bank, were begun during the construction boom under the previous right-wing government and reluctantly completed by this administration. But they were not sold in order to slow the growth of the settler population.

"This is a test case," settler spokeswoman Aliza Herbst said of the squatters. If the government doesn't evict the families in Beit El, others would follow elsewhere, she said.

Today, about 125,000 settlers live among 1.8 million Palestinians in the occupied lands. Herbst said the squatter action was a direct response to the stabbing death of Mizrahi. He was the first settler killed since the accord with the Palestine Liberation Organization was signed Sept. 13.

Settlers believe Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin has abandoned them and treats them as outcasts.

Local institution awarded for promoting fitness

By TIFFANY STEWART
Universe Staff Writer

The Roger and Cybil Ferguson Wellness Institute at the Utah Valley Regional Medical Center recently received an award for promoting the health of its employees.

The award was presented by Utah Gov. Mike Leavitt's Council on Health and Physical Fitness recently at the University Park Hotel in Salt Lake City.

The award is given to companies for meeting standards in work site health promotion.

Those standards include encouraging total fitness of employees. The Wellness Institute makes various evaluations and health tests available to employees, said Brent Edgington, director of the Wellness Institute.

Health aspects that can be evaluated include strength, flexibility, body composition, fitness level, nutritional balance and personality, Edgington said.

Businesses that are interested in setting up their own work site health promotion program can contact the Wellness Institute at 371-7270.

SHE'S NOT A COMMODITY

Some men believe that they're very clever if they find the supposedly cheapest diamond in town. In the rush to believe it's the cheapest, quality is overlooked and ring selection becomes low priority. They settle for any ring rather than the ring that expresses the celebration they feel.

They should go to Wilson Diamonds! Wilson's consistently offers the lowest prices anywhere, (a fact we guarantee in writing) but never by compromising quality or selection. More importantly, the overwhelming number of classic, beautiful, quality rings at Wilson's shows that you perfect style, but because you got the price you wanted as well.

Wilson Diamonds is a brilliant choice.
